

Screen Shot of TelevisionDemo

The screenshot shows the Eclipse IDE's Console window. The title bar indicates the application is "TelevisionDemo [Java Application]" located at "/Users/vanessa/.p2/p". The console output shows the following sequence of events: the application starts by displaying "A 55-inch Toshiba has been turned on.", then prompts the user "What channel do you want?". The user enters "56", which results in "Channel: 56, Volume: 21". The application then responds with "Too loud!! I am lowering the volume." and finally displays "Channel: 56, Volume: 15". The IDE interface includes tabs for Problems, Javadoc, Declaration, and Console.

```
<terminated> TelevisionDemo [Java Application] /Users/vanessa/.p2/p
A 55-inch Toshiba has been turned on.
What channel do you want? 56
Channel: 56, Volume: 21
Too loud!! I am lowering the volume.
Channel: 56, Volume: 15
```

Screen Shot of Edit TelevisionDemo

The screenshot shows the Eclipse IDE's Console window for the "Edit TelevisionDemo" application. The title bar indicates the application is "TelevisionDemo [Java Application]" located at "/Users/vanessa/.p2/p". The console output shows two separate interactions. The first interaction starts with "A 55-inch Toshiba has been turned on.", followed by the prompt "What channel do you want?". The user enters "7", resulting in "Channel: 7, Volume: 21". The application responds with "Too loud!! I am lowering the volume." and then "Channel: 7, Volume: 15". The second interaction begins with "A 19 inch Sharp has been turned on.", followed by the prompt "what chaneel do you want?". The user enters "7", resulting in "Channel: 7 Volume: 18". The IDE interface includes tabs for Problems, Javadoc, Declaration, and Console.

```
<terminated> TelevisionDemo [Java Application] /Users/vanessa/.p2/p
A 55-inch Toshiba has been turned on.
What channel do you want? 7
Channel: 7, Volume: 21
Too loud!! I am lowering the volume.
Channel: 7, Volume: 15

A 19 inch Sharp has been turned on.
what chaneel do you want? 7
Channel: 7 Volume: 18
```